Privacy Policy

ACRATH collects and administers a range of personal information for the purposes of achieving its key objectives. The organisation is committed to protecting the privacy of personal information it collects, holds and administers.

ACRATH recognises the essential right of individuals to have their information administered in ways which they would reasonably expect – protected on one hand, and made accessible to them on the other. These privacy values are reflected in and supported by our core values and philosophies.

ACRATH is bound by laws which impose specific obligations when it comes to handling information. The organisation has adopted the following principles contained as minimum standards in relation to handling personal information.

ACRATH will

- Collect only information which the organisation requires for its primary function;
- Ensure that stakeholders are informed as to why information is collected and how it is administered;
- Use and disclose personal information only for its primary functions or a directly related purpose, or for another purpose with the person's consent;
- Store personal information securely, protecting it from unauthorised access;
- Provide stakeholders with access to their own information and the means to seek its correction;
- Undertakes never to sell, lend or give any third party the personal information it holds.
